VERY UNFORTUNATE

DOES IT CURE CATARRH?

One of the Seventeen Thousand Testimonials Received.

DEAR SIR:—I had Catarrh for twenty years, and the last year (all of which time has been passed in the great establishment) suffered fearfully. It extended to my throat; the base of my tongue was badly affected. I constantly kept in my mouth a small piece of cotton, and breathed through it. I could not sleep with my mouth open, and a heavy snore came from my throat. In December, 1898, and in two weeks I was cured. I am going to ask the head of this firm, Mr. E. D. Jordan, to endorse this statement.

but as the matter now stands it will have to rest with the bowlers at the other end of the line whether or not a fair deal is made in the distribution of the stake. They certainly are aware of the number of pins they scored while in this city, as they had representatives here to act in that capacity, and any word they received from anyone excepting the official scorer of the match cannot be held as official. Word was sent to the stakeholder yesterday to wait for the official figures of the entire twelve games before he paid over the money, but he sent word back that, according to the telegrams he received from this city on the date of the games played here he had decided the match in favor of Wheeling. If Mr. Archer, who acted as stakeholder in the match, had waited until he received the official scores of all the games before he paid the money to either side, he would have saved a deal of unpleasantness on both sides, for as the match now stands, the victory is in the hands of the Columbus team, while the money that should accompany the victory is resting in the hands or pockets of the losers. Mr. Archer has promised to write a letter explaining his stand on the matter, and all criticism is withheld until he has a chance to set forth his views on the matter. It certainly looks very bad for the locals, as there is no chance for them to get their rights unless the bowlers who have participated in this match and came out of it with the money end, will prove themselves true sportsmen by not retaining what is rightfully not theirs. Mr. Archer stated in his telegram that "Collin acknowledged defeat," but as the writer was willing to Mr. Archer leaving the bowling alleys before the bowlers went away, this will hardly stand, as Herman states that he acknowledged defeat to the Columbus party had all the hustling they were capable of to make the train after the games, and this fact alone was one of the causes of the entanglement.

The State Journal refers to an "official score." There really was no official score for the games at Columbus, on which the controversy hinges. Mr. Needham acted for the stakeholder at these games, the latter being unable to attend, and was requested in a letter of instructions to see that the official scores were forwarded to the stakeholder. Mr. Needham did telegraph the scores to the Intelligencer. In the office of which the stakeholder is employed, in the absence of official scores, duly signed by the officials acting at Columbus, the stakeholder compared the scores sent the Intelligencer with those appearing in the State Journal, and as they were identical and unquestioned by anybody, he considered them correct and official. In that they were sent by the man who had been delegated to act for the stakeholder.

Before the evening games last Tuesday, it seems that Manager Fette heard that one of the Columbus players, the dispatch had printed the score of the second game at Columbus different from what had been printed in the State Journal and sent to the Intelligencer, and asked Mr. Needham which was the correct score. Mr. Needham, according to Manager Fette, answered that Columbus had a lead of 105 pins on its arrival at the Wheeling alleys, and that Wheeling would win if it overcame that lead in the event that games were played. Also according to Manager Fette, Mr. Needham said that the 165 score, Mr. Needham's official score, was upon that basis that the games at Wheeling were rolled and upon that basis Wheeling won by nine pins.

The stakeholder could not know that a protest would be filed nearly a day after the conclusion of the last game, and had no excuse for withholding the stake after that. Could he also be expected to wait for an "official score" of games played on December 26, which the second game at Columbus, and which the Columbus team lost, and even bring to Wheeling with them? Mr. Collin did in effect acknowledge the defeat of his team, and all the Columbus players and bowlers tacitly admitted their defeat. If they had won, would they have left the alleys without even asking for a count of pins or for the money at stake? Certainly not.

If a mistake was made in sending the scores from Columbus, it is unfortunate, but how can it become known in time that a mistake was really made? There is no evidence of a mistake, so far.

There was a most unsatisfactory ending to the match games at Wheeling Tuesday evening, inasmuch as the result was credited to the team from the West, and the Columbus team, it all happened through a misunderstanding of the number of pins that Columbus had the advantage of their opponents after the first six games had been played. The result of the games as published in The State Journal gave Wheeling ten pins more than they gave in the second game and this was not the official score, merely a copy taken hastily at the conclusion of the third game of the series. The copy went to Wheeling with the idea of having 105 pins the best of the first six games, whereas the advantage according to the official score shows 115 pins. Wheeling scored 113 more pins in the last six games than Columbus, which rightly gives the match to the team from this city by a margin of two pins. Had this fact been known by the members of the team, no trouble would have occurred.

BOXING.

Oscar Gardner returned home yesterday morning, accompanied by a Mr. Smith, of New York, one of his backers. The old brute under his eye was the only visible mark of his encounter with Dave Sullivan, and that tender spot is beyond all healing as long as he continues to fight every fortnight. Oscar's end of the purse netted him exactly $2,495.85, although the attendance was equal, if not larger, than at the Sharkey-McCoy contest, but the prize was much lower, the general admission being placed at one plank, and ascending to $7. Fane seats brought $20 for the big fellows' fight. Gifts from Smith and other backers on him increased Oscar's plum to $3,000, in addition to a lot on Coney Island, valued at $600, which Smith, who won $2,000 on the fight, presented to him. Mr. Smith will be in the city until he goes to New York to fight Solly Smith.

When a boxer gets to the top he can afford to do a little dictating himself. Hence, Oscar Gardner doesn't intend going out of his class in the future—a move that shows his good judgment, for he took big chances in meeting men at the light-weight limit, 135 pounds, and frequently his opponents weighed 138. Hereafter, Oscar insists that his opponent must weigh 122 pounds or under, and on account of his resolve the six-round go with Tommy White, at Chicago, has been declared off. White was to weigh 133 pounds, and wouldn't meet Gardner at 122, but would meet others. Another reason for Gardner dropping the match was that he is not a six-round boxer, and couldn't expect to get the decision with a man like the Chicago crack, in six rounds, at catchweights.

Gardner's next engagement will be on February 6, at the swell Belvedere A. C., New York, where the bleachers cost $1 apiece. He and Solly Smith, his old college chum, will mix it for twenty-five rounds.

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean.

MAKE A TEST OF STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think their nerves are to blame, and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicines. The real seat of the mischief is lost sight of. The stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspepsias do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every organ. In some cases the heart palpitates, and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches, still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite, with accumulations of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

It is safe to say that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will cure the stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. They cure sour stomach, gas, loss of flesh and appetite, sleeplessness, palpitation, heartburn, constipation and headache.

Send for valuable little book on stomach diseases by addressing F. A. Stuart, C. O. Marshall, Mich. All druggists sell full-sized packages at 50 cents. Prof. Henry W. Becker, A. M., the well known religious worker and writer of St. Louis; secretary of the Mission Board of the German Methodist church; chief clerk and expert accountant for the harbor and wharf commission; public secretary for the St. Louis School Patrons' Association, and the District Conference of Stewards of the M. E. church; also takes an active part in the work of the Epworth League and to write on religious and educational topics for several magazines. How he found relief is best told in his own words:

"Some weeks ago my brother heard me say something about indigestion, and taking a box from his pocket said, 'The Stuart's Tablets.' I did, and was promptly relieved. Then I investigated the nature of the tablets, and became satisfied that they were made of just the right things and in just the right proportions to aid in the assimilation of food. I heartily endorse them in all respects, and I keep them constantly on hand."
